MADNESS DRIVES FRANCO ESTEVE'S NEW SINGLE

Franco Esteve's New, Soundtrack Music Single, "A Moment of Madness," sets the tone for the upcoming film series, Fragments of Madness

Cala Ratjada, Balears, Spain - April 14th, 2022: Puerto Rican artist and composer, Franco Esteve, has released a new, contemporary classical soundtrack music single called "A Moment of Madness". The single is the theme music for the upcoming short film series, Fragments of Madness, currently in production, and is meant to set the tone for the series, its frantic nature, a step beyond his highly successful soundtracks for The Doll Chronicles series of short films.

Franco Esteve, a multi-disciplinary artist and composer, is known for his story-driven, filmic approach to his music, taking the listener on a journey that expresses, penetrates, and captivates, evoking universal emotions and images. His brand of music allows the listener to feel the story, with or without a visual aid. This latest work is no exception. Though the music is the theme to the Fragments of Madness series, it communicates the frantic madness that takes over when our mind takes us beyond reality.

Esteve is an award-winning filmmaker and composer, and soundtrack lovers will appreciate the sense of story and the tone that "A Moment of Madness" is meant to evoke. Jamsphere Magazine, in their review of "Quicksand," his first single and one of the songs from "The Hunt", had this to say about the composer: "To say his music is cinematic is all too obvious and Esteve's ability to create simple and emotive musical narratives is a rare gift to be admired...Esteve's music has a universal appeal that will attract audiences of many cultures and musical tastes." A Huffington Post review has said the following about Franco Esteve's most famous song, also from "The Hunt", "The Wait": "(Franco) Esteve has composed a glistening tune that is simultaneously diaphanous and sensitive, yet emancipated and emotive."

"I love exploring different genres and musical styles, whatever is best for what I'm trying to express, be it classical, orchestral music, new age, jazz, or whatever. A Moment of Madness, though it uses orchestral elements, focuses on the ethereal and its ability to sound otherworldly, beyond the natural, but simultaneously organic and real. It represents the series well, as its frantic nature takes us on that mental journey beyond reality."

You can listen to the “A Moment of Madness,” and find more information at Franco Esteve’s website. It is also available as Digital Download on Amazon, iTunes, Bandcamp, and for streaming on Spotify, Apple Music, Tidal, and on all the main music streaming services and online stores. Here is what Franco Esteve says of his creative musical compositions: "For me, composing music is a process of exploration, which is why I’m so drawn to it. There are so many places to visit and explore and express. I think music can act as a live entity within a story, regardless of where or what inspires it."

“A Moment of Madness,” is the contemporary classical, ehru focused theme song to the upcoming short film series, Fragments of Madness. It explores and captures the otherworldly madness of the films and sets the tone for the series, evoking that singular moment when we lose our sense of reality and question what we see, hear, or experience.
